Summary

Dr. David Nixon's photos show biochips based on an integrated circuit containing superheavy superconducting elements used by our body to connect consciousness with the nervous system (psychophysical dualism). The seven elements probably support all modalities. The potential scope of action on our psyche and extracting information from it can therefore be enormous. However, the use of all these possibilities will depend on the ingenuity, skills and technical equipment of the scientists engaged in this deadly procedure of tormenting people and driving them to madness, possibly death, or to psychological enslavement and manipulation of their actions.

I also examined a biochip the size of rice grain, taken from under a person's skin, for the content of superheavy elements. It contains the same elements 104, 109, 115, 125, 129, 132 and 149, so it is also designed for universal impact on the psyche. In this context, I receive information from people tortured in Poland with microwave weapons. They concurrently detect under their skin older generation biochips that one can palpate with fingers, forcibly implanted in hospital procedures. The stories they tell about the manipulation of their psyche and the contents of the sensorium, become credible.

The fate of people vaccinated multiple times seems terrifying, too. The situation of the doctors and nurses who trusted the authorities and carried out the procedure does not seem better when the planned genocide finally takes place.

Can we ward off this manipulation? Probably only by breaking the microwave link with a very strong electromagnetic pulse, as is done in the military with enemy radio receivers. But that is not my story at all...

Referring to humanists and doctors' catchy theory, biochip self-organization without a plan for connecting millions of transistors and without executive mechanisms, these views should be thwarted. Such theories are thrown in by the same globalists who want depopulation, because in this way they deflect attention into a blind alley and then it is easy to blur formal responsibility for something that is not credible.

The aim of this study was to show that covid-19 vaccines contain biochips based on an integrated circuit camouflaged inside organic crystals. Adapted to the manipulation of the human psyche, the biochips are advanced beyond civilian science, The goal was achieved. I don't wish to deal with this dirt any further, for example, to investigate in which vaccines they occur. After several years' experience with various medical equipment, I can summarize that every vaccine can threaten our lives, as is admitted in the accompanying leaflets.

Now it's up to others investigating nasty injections to dissolve the organic crystals surrounding the biochips, for example in not too concentrated oxidizing acids, and show the microprocessor in all its glory.
